She tried her hand

by Bryony Parsons

She tried her hand at most things, but drew the line at honesty,
She tugs at the heart strings,
and tries to keep her sanity.

She fakes a smile,
and pretends to be happy,
To keep a peaceful lifestyle, despite feeling low and crappy.

She hides from the truth,
and creates a web of lies,
To protect the ones she loves,
From her cries.

Pleasing people is important to her,
as well as keeping them satisfied,
so she holds her head high,
and asks for a prayer.

She wishes to be herself once more,
and be able to speak the truth,
Without creating a war.
