

Bourne
toWrite... creative writing
workshops

Too late

by Sho Botham

Stop it
I can't bear it
You promised
But you lied
You should have told me

Telling me now is too late truths hidden by your lies
You should have told me

Your confession
makes you feel better
but what about me?
what about us?
You should have told me

A life of lies is what I have looking back an empty void
You should have told me

It's time to admit what I've known for years
you looked elsewhere
You should have told me

I prepared well
for this day knowing I had to look after myself
You should have told me

It could have been different if we'd worked together
You should have told me

Our company
is gone you've lost - and I have won
You should have told me